In the wake of Hurricane Laura, Sasol has responded with a comprehensive and meaningful response plan to support our affected colleagues during this difficult time.

In accordance with the guidance provided by local officials, Sasol is recommending that our many employees outside of the affected areas who want to help should donate money to a local charity that can expedite resources and necessities directly to those in need. The Community Foundation of Southwest Louisiana (to which Sasol has already pledged $100,000), the American Red Cross, the United Way of Southwest Louisiana and the Salvation Army are some of the many organizations providing critical emergency services in the region.

Unfortunately, the scope of Hurricane Laura's devastation, which has damaged infrastructure and made the area potentially unsafe, along with the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, makes it dangerous for employees to travel to areas affected by the storm.

With that in mind, the best, most meaningful response right now is to contribute financially to the recovery efforts. In the meantime, Sasol will continue to provide updates to its employees as warranted.
